Bible Biography

The lives and characters of the principal personages recorded in the sacred writings, practically adapted to the instruction of youth and private families; together with an appendix, containing thirty dissertations on the evidences of Divine Revelation, from Timpson's key to the Bible, being a complete summary of biblical knowledge, carefully condensed and compiled from Scott, Doddridge, Gill, Adam Clarke, Pool, Lowth, Horne, Stowe, Robinson, and other eminent writers on the Scriptures. Robert Editor. Embellished with several hundred Engravings on wood, illustrating Scripture scenes, manners, customs.

The following notice of 'Bible Biography' written by the Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., is a careful examination of the volume. It has been long known throughout the United States as one of our most useful, learned, and eloquent. This candid and impartial review fails, therefore, to have great weight with those who are anxious to know the real merits of the

New York, August 6th, 1842. This is, beyond question, one of the most magnificent books ever presented to our fellow-citizens in this Republic. It is a volume of 500 pages, containing about 500 engravings of a most interesting character. The paper, the type, the engravings, are all of them such as might enter into a successful competition with any of the London publications. It is a superior specimen of domestic fabrication, both external and internal; and it ought, in this respect, to be patronized by every patriotic citizen. But this is the valuable thing about it. This volume gives accurate views of eastern customs, habits, manners, animals, scenery; and, in addition to the pictures given in brief, accurate, and elegant illustrations, we have every variety of pictorial exhibition which at once amuse, interest, delight and instruct. In this volume we have, moreover, a series of well-written biographies of all the principal characters mentioned in the Holy Bible. These are selected with taste and singular discrimination from the best authors extant on the subject. There is a crowning excellence in the last hundred pages, where we possess a rich treasury of religious and religious knowledge, carefully condensed and compiled from 'Timpson's Key to the Holy Bible,' a work accessible to very few.

Mr. Sears' object in presenting this admirable and beautiful volume, ought to be duly appreciated by every minister, parent and Sabbath-school teacher. His aim is to extend the interest in the Holy Bible—to place in the most attractive form its divine truths and holy precepts, by instruction and by cultivating examples. It is, in fact, a most valuable thing about it. This volume gives accurate views of eastern customs, habits, manners, animals, scenery; and, in addition to the pictures given in brief, accurate, and elegant illustrations, we have every variety of pictorial exhibition which at once amuse, interest, delight and instruct. In this volume we have, moreover, a series of well-written biographies of all the principal characters mentioned in the Holy Bible. These are selected with taste and singular discrimination from the best authors extant on the subject. There is a crowning excellence in the last hundred pages, where we possess a rich treasury of religious and religious knowledge, carefully condensed and compiled from 'Timpson's Key to the Holy Bible,' a work accessible to very few.

Hence, Mr. Sears has an honest and important moral claim for patronage and support, from every minister and every parent, and every school teacher, and on every patriot, acting on Christian principles. I have only to add, friends, and to the people of my numerous towns, that there is, perhaps, no other book, recent or old, which I would, in preference to this beautiful and judicious volume, put into the hands of my children, to captivate their attention and woo them over to the study of the Bible. It ought to be in every Christian's library, for its innate value; and in every patriot's as a splendid specimen of our progress in the manufacture, and the advancement of our arts and manufactures in their rivalry with Europe.

W. C. BROWNLEE, TO PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS OF NEWSPAPERS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AND BRITISH PROVINCES.

The publisher of the above work requests of newspaper proprietors, that they copy the advertisement exactly as it is printed, and where it is convenient and practicable, to act as agents in receiving subscriptions, or appoint some friend as a substitute in their neighborhood.
